THE EUROPEAN UNION AND PEACEBUILDING

POLICY AND LEGAL ASPECTS
THE EUROPEAN UNION AND PEACEBUILDING
POLICY AND LEGAL ASPECTS

edited by

Steven BLOCKMANS
Jan WOUTERS
Tom RUYS
FOREWORD

Dear Reader,

You have in your hands the last part of a trilogy exploring the European Union’s approaches to conflicts and crisis. The titles of these books present well the evolution of the international policy debate and thinking during the first decade of the 21st century from a relatively narrow pre-conflict perspective to a wider approach which encompasses all phases of the crisis. The first part published in 2004 was called ‘The European Union and Conflict prevention’, reflecting how conflict prevention was high on the agenda as a response to the Balkan Wars. In 2008 the second part, ‘The European Union and Crisis Management’, was published as the European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP)-missions had been operational for some years. Finally the series is completed in 2010 with “The European Union and Peacebuilding”.

Peacebuilding is a somewhat flexible concept, of which there is currently no officially agreed international definition. However, this descriptive phrase is perhaps most useful in its most comprehensive sense – efforts aiming at a solid and lasting peace. For the European Union, peacebuilding requires bringing together a variety of external policy tools which include security aspects, mediation and preventive diplomacy, development cooperation and trade relations, in order to make an impact, be coherent and achieve sustainable results.

The European Union has made systematic efforts to ensure an integrated approach to peacebuilding. In this regard, the decisions adopted on the security and development nexus and on fragility in 2007 were a strategic step forward. We are engaged in various activities across the globe, such as for example supporting conflict resolution processes and ensuring the engagement of women in these, as well as building the peacebuilding capacities of regional organisations.

Successful peacebuilding requires taking on a preventive focus. Conflict prevention continues to lie at the heart of all European Union activities, as it is the most cost effective and life saving approach. Conflict prevention implies providing early and sustainable assistance to countries under stress and it is the best measure to avoid a relapse into conflict. While building for the future, we must strive to put an end to the suffering caused by legacies of conflicts, such as the scourge of landmines and other inhumane weapons, which continue to create a burden even decades later and delay development and prosperity goals.

Moreover, peacebuilding is also a joint effort in which the international community needs to work together. In this regard the United Nations, international and regional organisations and especially civil society are all vital partners for the European Union. However, international efforts need to involve local communities early on in order to create a nationally owned process, which is a requisite for lasting peace. Only through partnership with local actors can international norms be combined with a respect and understanding of local context, and promote the transfer of responsibilities and ownership to the populations concerned. In this work we need to engage with local civil society as well as representatives of media and local business communities.

The link between peace, security and development has been widely recognised by the international community, and as a response, the United Nations Peacebuilding Commission (PBC) was created in 2005. The European Union is committed to actively supporting the work of the Peacebuilding Commission on the basis of its experience, resources and worldwide operability.

During the first five years the PBC has brought together all key players on the ground to enable a comprehensive approach to peacebuilding in selected post-conflict states. In 2010 the progress of the PBC so far will be examined in order to take on board lessons learned for the next steps, ensuring that it can discharge its mandate more effectively and better deliver real progress on the ground. 2010 is also the year for the Review Summit of the UN Millennium Development Goals (MDG) aiming at eradicating poverty. The link between countries affected by fragility and conflict and those lagging most behind in attaining the MDGs indicates clearly the need for stronger ties between security and development efforts.

I congratulate the authors of this informative and well-written book, who are not afraid of taking a critical approach. From the point of view of the EU institutions, it is published at a particularly timely moment, as we embark upon a new era in the European Union’s external relations through the implementation of the Lisbon Treaty. I hope that you as a reader will find enriching this thorough and wide ranging description of the various aspects of peacebuilding, a concept that we will undoubtedly keep on discussing in the coming years and a goal at which we will continue to aim.

March 2010

Catherine Ashton
High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy / Vice-President of the European Commission
PREFACE AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The present volume constitutes the last part of a triptych, with earlier works dealing with conflict prevention (V. Kronenberger and J. Wouters, eds., The European Union and Conflict Prevention: Policy and Legal Aspects (The Hague, T.M.C. Asser Press 2004)) and crisis management respectively (S. Blockmans, ed., The European Union and Crisis Management: Policy and Legal Aspects (The Hague, T.M.C. Asser Press 2008)). The obvious implication is that we aim at focusing on the final phase of peacemaking efforts to break conflict cycles, on The European Union and Peacebuilding.

Leading practitioners and prominent academics have been invited to explore the wide variety of policy and legal aspects of the European Union’s contribution to building durable peace in countries ravaged by violent conflict. The book is testimony to the enormous complexity of international efforts to break conflict cycles, which requires both long-term commitment and a multi-faceted approach, combining the re-establishment of basic security with the promotion of respect for human rights, the rule of law, good governance and economic recovery.

Given the intricacies and dynamics of the editorial process, some of the contributions were completed prior to the entry into force of the Lisbon Treaty. Where appropriate, these contributions nonetheless refer to the impact expected from the new Treaty. Other chapters have integrated the institutional developments since the Lisbon Treaty became operational. In any event, the editors are convinced that this divergence does not detract from the value of the analyses, nor from the lessons drawn from years of inter-institutional practice and which should be taken to heart to make the Union’s efforts in the field of peacebuilding more efficient and more effective.

We would like to express our sincere gratitude to the practitioners and academics who contributed to this volume. Thanks to their unique insights and high quality contributions, the book offers the first comprehensive and in-depth treatise of the role of the EU in the international peacebuilding endeavour. Special thanks also go to the T.M.C. Asser Instituut for financially supporting the production of this book, to Suzanne Habraken for her sub-editing and language-editing of the manuscript and to Steffen van der Velde for compiling the index and the list of abbreviations. This volume is the result of a fruitful cooperation between the Centre for the Law of EU External Relations (CLEER) and the Leuven Centre for Global Governance Studies.

March 2010

The editors
SUMMARY OF CONTENTS

Foreword by Catherine Ashton V
Preface and Acknowledgements VII
Table of Contents XI
List of Abbreviations XIX

Making peace last. The EU’s contribution to peacebuilding 1
Steven Blockmans, Jan Wouters and Tom Ruys

Part I. EU Peacebuilding – general perspectives
Chapter 1 EU Peacebuilding: Concepts, players and instruments 15
Simon Duke and Aurélie Courtier
Chapter 2 The EU as a peacebuilder: Actorness, potential and limits 55
Nathalie Tocci
Chapter 3 EU enlargement as a peacebuilding tool 77
Steven Blockmans

Part II. Working with partners
Chapter 4 EU-UN cooperation in peacebuilding: Natural partners? 107
Catriona Gourlay
Chapter 5 The EU and the UN Peacebuilding Commission: A short account of how the EU presence has influenced the newest UN body 141
Stefano Tomat and Cesare Onestini
Chapter 6 Cooperation between the EU and the AU in the field of peacebuilding 161
Koen Vervaeke
Chapter 7 Convergence without cooperation? The EU and the OSCE in the field of peacebuilding 175
David Galbreath

Part III. Peace and security
Chapter 8 The European Union and security sector governance 195
David Spence
Chapter 9 Strengthening security, building peace: The EU in the Democratic Republic of Congo 221
Marta Martinelli
Chapter 10
The European Union and peacebuilding: The case of Chad 249
Cees Wittebrood and Christophe Gadrey

Chapter 11
EU peacebuilding in Georgia: Limits and achievements 269
Michael Merlingen and Rasa Ostrauskaitė

Chapter 12
The EU in Afghanistan: Peacebuilding in a conflict setting 295
Eva Gross

Part IV. Rule of law, democracy and human rights

Chapter 13
The European Union and electoral support 313
Patrick Dupont, Francesco Torcoli and Fabio Bargiacchi

Chapter 14
Mainstreaming human rights and gender into the Common Security and Defence Policy: The case of the EU Monitoring Mission in Georgia 341
Hadewych Hazelzet

Chapter 15
EULEX Kosovo: Walking a thin line, aiming for the rule of law 353
Stephan Keukeleire and Robin Thiers

Chapter 16
The Aceh Monitoring Mission: Securing peace and democracy 375
Justin Davies

Chapter 17
The European Union and transitional justice 387
Thomas Unger

Part V. Good governance and economic development

Chapter 18
International trusteeship and democratic peacebuilding: The EU in the Balkans 407
Tonny Brems Knudsen and Christian Axboe Nielsen

Chapter 19
A missed opportunity: State building in Bosnia and Herzegovina (October 2002 to October 2006) 439
Michael Humphreys and Jasna Jelisić

Chapter 20
Meeting the challenge of state building: EU development policy and cooperation in post-conflict countries 461
Philippe Darmuzey

Chapter 21
The EU and the Kimberley Process: A new international actor for new international relations 475
Stéphane Chardon

List of Contributors 495
Index 499
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword by Catherine Ashton V
Preface and Acknowledgements VII
Summary of Contents IX
List of Abbreviations XIX

Making peace last. The EU’s contribution to peacebuilding 1
Steven Blockmans, Jan Wouters and Tom Ruys

1. Introduction to the book 1
2. Scope and objective 4
3. Overview 5

Part I. EU Peacebuilding – general perspectives

Chapter 1
EU Peacebuilding: Concepts, players and instruments 15
Simon Duke and Aurélie Courtier

1. Introduction 15
2. Concepts and definitions 16
2.1 Introduction 16
2.2 The UN’s understanding of peacebuilding 18
2.3 The EU’s understanding of peacebuilding 21
2.3.1 Introduction 21
2.3.2 Internal and external, shorter and longer-term peacebuilding 26
2.3.3 Short-term dimension of EU peacebuilding (CFSP and ESDP) 27
2.3.4 Longer-term dimension of EU peacebuilding (EC) 28
3. Competence and role distribution: policies, instruments, players 30
3.1 Introduction 30
3.2 Peacebuilding activities under the Community Pillar 31
3.2.1 Policies 32
3.2.2 Instruments 37
3.2.3 Players 40
3.3 Peacebuilding activities under the Second Pillar 42
3.3.1 Policies 44
3.3.2 Instruments 45
3.3.3 Players 47
3.4 Peacebuilding and the Lisbon Treaty 48
4. The EU’s external partners in peacebuilding 49
5. Conclusions 52

Chapter 2
The EU as a peacebuilder: Actorness, potential and limits 55
Nathalie ToCCI

1. Short and long-term policy instruments to promote peacebuilding 56
2. EU mechanisms to promote peacebuilding 60
2.1 Enhancing capability 61
2.2 Socialisation 63
2.3 Conditionality 66
2.4 Passive enforcement 70
3. The EU as a peacebuilder: Potential and limits 71
3.1 The value of the benefit 71
3.2 The credibility of the EU as a peacebuilder 73
4. Conclusions 75

Chapter 3
EU enlargement as a peacebuilding tool 77
Steven Blockmans
1. Building peace across the continent 77
2. (Member) State building, epitome of (EU) peacebuilding 78
3. Legal reform 81
3.1 Peace brokering and constitution-making 81
3.2 Constitutional reform 82
3.3 Approximation of laws to the acquis 83
3.3.1 More than just legal harmonisation 83
3.3.2 Planning documents and institutional mechanisms 83
3.3.3 Technical and financial assistance 85
4. Institution building 87
4.1 Creation and reorganisation 87
4.1.1 Reforming the bureaucracy 87
4.1.2 Coordination within the executive 88
4.1.3 Security sector reform 90
4.2 Democratic legitimacy? 91
5. Constituency building 94
5.1 Introduction 94
5.2 Assuring minority rights protection 97
5.3 Reinterpreting ICTY conditionality 98
5.4 Fighting organised crime 99
6. The future of enlargement: Peacebuilding by default rather than design? 100

Part II. Working with partners

Chapter 4
EU-UN cooperation in peacebuilding: Natural partners? 107
Catriona Gourlay
1. Introduction 107
2. Are EU and UN peacebuilding policies coherent? 108
3. Operational cooperation in peacebuilding: The development dimension 113
3.1 Trends in EC policy and funding for state building in fragile states 113
3.2 Operational challenges for EC engagement in fragile states 115
3.3 Trends in EC funding for the UN 116
3.4 Analysis of funding trends 123
4. Operational cooperation in peacebuilding: The (civilian) security dimension 126
4.1 Trends in European civilian deployments 127
4.2 Civilian ESDP-UN operational cooperation 129
4.2.1 Operational trends 129
4.2.2 Operational cooperation in the DRC and the EU Police Mission (EUPOL Kinshasa) 131
4.2.3 Operational cooperation in the DRC and the EU security sector reform mission (EUSEC RDC) 132
4.2.4 Operational cooperation in Kosovo 136
5. Conclusions 138
Chapter 5

The EU and the UN Peacebuilding Commission: A short account of how the EU presence has influenced the newest UN body

Stefano Tomat and Cesare Onestini

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Introduction</td>
<td>141</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Origins and setting up of the Peacebuilding Commission within the United Nations</td>
<td>142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.1 Preparatory work</td>
<td>142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.2 The position of the EU</td>
<td>143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.3 Creation of the Peacebuilding Commission</td>
<td>144</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Structures and instruments of the UN Peacebuilding Commission</td>
<td>145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.1 Structures</td>
<td>145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.2 Instruments</td>
<td>147</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Activities of the UN Peacebuilding Commission</td>
<td>150</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. The presence and the role of the European Union in the UN Peacebuilding Commission</td>
<td>153</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1 Negotiations with the UN on the participation of the EU</td>
<td>153</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.2 Negotiations within the EU on its representation in the PBC</td>
<td>154</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3 The role of the EU/EC in the PBC</td>
<td>154</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. The EU and the PBC: Converging institutional interests?</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.1 A coherent and active member</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.2 The role of the Presidency</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.3 Coordination in Brussels</td>
<td>156</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.4 Expert participation</td>
<td>156</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.5 Visits by the PBC Chair to Brussels</td>
<td>156</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. The effectiveness of the Peacebuilding Commission: An initial assessment from an EU perspective</td>
<td>156</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Chapter 6

Cooperation between the EU and the AU in the field of peacebuilding

Koen Vervaeke

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Introduction: A new context</td>
<td>161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. The three pillars of the peace and security partnership</td>
<td>164</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.1 Enhanced dialogue on issues related to peace and security</td>
<td>165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.2 Capacitating Africa to deal with its security challenges</td>
<td>166</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.3 Predictable funding and support to African PSOs</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Key challenges</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.1 Building a stronger AU capacity</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.2 Ensuring coherence between the continental and regional level</td>
<td>170</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.3 Developing a productive UN-AU-EU relationship</td>
<td>171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.4 Deepening EU coherence after Lisbon</td>
<td>172</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Conclusion</td>
<td>173</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Chapter 7

Convergence without cooperation? The EU and the OSCE in the field of peacebuilding

David Galbreath

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Introduction</td>
<td>175</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Converging agendas and functions</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Peacebuilding cooperation in context</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.1 Conflict prevention and resolution</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.2 Democracy promotion</td>
<td>183</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.3 Human rights protection</td>
<td>185</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Conflict or cooperation?</td>
<td>187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Conclusion</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Part III. Peace and security

Chapter 8
The European Union and security sector governance
David Spence

1. Introduction: Discovering the concept of SSR
2. Issues of security in international context
3. Two concepts of SSR: Armed services-specific and holistic-societal
   3.1 Reforming the armed services
   3.2 A holistic-societal approach to SSR
4. The origins and precepts of the EU’s holistic approach to security sector reform
5. Human security
6. The evolution of the EU policy framework for SSR
7. Learning on the job: Cross-Pillar approaches to SSR
8. The Commission’s external assistance instruments in support of SSR
9. The Commission’s international role: donorship and coordination
10. Conclusion: SSR and the EU’s normative role

Chapter 9
Strengthening security, building peace: The EU in the Democratic Republic of Congo
Marta Martinelli

1. Introduction
2. Background to the security situation in the DRC
   2.1 The security context today
   2.2 Security providers?
3. The role of the EU in promoting stability in the DRC
   3.1 Military intervention: from Artemis to EUFOR RD Congo
4. The EU and security sector reform in the DRC
   4.1 A country-specific approach
   4.2 EUPOL Kinshasa
   4.3 EUPOL RD Congo
   4.4 EUSEC RD Congo
5. The contribution of ESDP to peace and stability in the DRC: Some preliminary reflections
   5.1 Strengths
   5.2 Weaknesses
6. Conclusion: Promoting peacebuilding through SSR

Chapter 10
The European Union and peacebuilding: The case of Chad
Cees Wittebrood and Christophe Gadrey

1. Introduction
2. Regional context
3. EU response
   3.1 Security support
   3.2 Political engagement
   3.3 Humanitarian assistance
   3.4 Development cooperation
4. Lessons learned
   4.1 Has the EU approach really been comprehensive?
   4.2 What about complementarity?
   4.3 Has EUFOR been an appropriate and effective tool?
   4.4 Has coordination been adequate?
5. Conclusion
Chapter 14

Mainstreaming human rights and gender into the Common Security and Defence Policy: The case of the EU Monitoring Mission in Georgia 341
Hadewych Hazelzet

1. Introduction 341
2. Mainstreaming human rights and gender into ESDP 341
3. Case study: EU Monitoring Mission (EUMM) Georgia 345
4. Conclusion and way forward 347

Chapter 15

EULEX Kosovo: Walking a thin line, aiming for the rule of law 353
Stephan Keukeleire and Robin Thiers

1. Introduction 353
2. Setting the stage: The UN’s peacebuilding efforts in a post-conflict society 355
3. The bumpy road from UN(MIK) to EU(LEX) 358
5. Police and customs: The easy job? 364
6. EULEX justice – or what it all comes down to in the end 367
7. Conclusions 373

Chapter 16

The Aceh Monitoring Mission: Securing peace and democracy 375
Justin Davies

1. Introduction 375
2. AMM in the context of the Memorandum of Understanding 376
3. Mandate of AMM and immediate challenges 378
4. Organisational elements 380
5. Proactive monitoring – rule of law, human rights and democracy 381
6. Conclusion and the future 385

Chapter 17

The European Union and transitional justice 387
Thomas Unger

1. Introduction 387
2. Defining transitional justice 388
3. The link between transitional justice and peacebuilding 391
4. The relevance of transitional justice for the EU 393
5. Current EU policy and practice on transitional justice 394
5.1 General overview 394
5.2 The Council (the ‘voice of Member States’) 395
5.3 Commission (the ‘driving force of the EU’) 398
5.4 The Parliament (the ‘democratic voice of the people’) 400
6. Possible future directions for the EU on transitional justice 401
7. Conclusions 403

Part V. Good governance and economic development

Chapter 18

International trusteeship and democratic peacebuilding: The EU in the Balkans 407
Tonny Brems Knudsen and Christian Axboe Nielsen

1. Introduction 407
2. International trusteeship: The concept and the challenge 409
A missed opportunity: State building in Bosnia and Herzegovina (October 2002 to October 2006)

Michael HUMPHREYS and Jasna JELISIĆ

Chapter 19

1. Introduction
2. Background
2.1 The Dayton Peace Agreement and its aftermath
2.2 The function of external actors in Bosnia
2.3 The role of the European Union
2.4 Immediate situation pre- and post-elections
3. A window of opportunity – 2003 to 2005
3.1 Formation of the new government
3.2 OHR reform programme
3.2.1 Defence reform
3.2.2 Tax reform
3.2.3 Police reform
3.3 EU integration process of BiH
3.4 Constitutional reform
4. Reflections
4.1 Turning points
4.2 Interinstitutional coherence
4.3 Lessons learned – what opens opportunities?
4.4 What froze the state building?
4.5 The future

Meeting the challenge of state building: EU development policy and cooperation in post-conflict countries

Philippe DARMUZÉY

Chapter 20

1. Introduction
2. The rationale for intervention in post-conflict countries
2.1 European Consensus on Development
2.2 Overview of key objectives
2.3 Situations of fragility
3. Instruments
3.1 Trends in Commission funding between 2001 and 2008
3.2 European Development Fund
3.3 Instrument for Stability
3.4 African Peace Facility
4. Challenges and ways forward
4.1 Introduction
4.2 Towards a ‘Whole-of-the-Union’ approach
4.3 The state-building challenge
4.4 Rendering EU development assistance more effective and responsive
4.5 Strategic partnerships
5. Conclusion
Chapter 21
The EU and the Kimberley Process: A new international actor for new international relations
Stéphane CHARDON

1. Introduction 475
2. The Kimberley process: An innovative international instrument 477
   2.1 The legal status of the Kimberley Process: An international scheme based on national laws 477
   2.2 The KP’s innovative organisational set-up: Flexibility and burden sharing 478
   2.2.1 The Chair 478
   2.2.2 Working groups 479
   2.3 Tripartite composition and consensual decision-making 480
3. From Kimberley to Windhoek – the maturity of the KP (2003-2009) 480
   3.1 KP ‘inclusiveness’ – an attractive club 480
   3.2 KP statistics – transparency in the diamond sector 481
   3.3 Monitoring KP implementation – the KP’s ‘investigative arm”? 482
   3.4 From conflict prevention towards peacebuilding 485
4. The KP’s operations in crises 487
   4.1 Côte d’Ivoire: UN and KP united in the fight against conflict diamonds 487
   4.2 Marange diamonds: ‘Blood diamonds’ or ‘conflict diamonds”? 488
5. Challenges to the KP’s future 489
   5.1 Too narrow a mandate? 489
   5.2 Strong international rules v. weak national implementation 490
   5.3 Adaptation and evolution 491
   5.4 A Kimberley Process for all ‘conflict resources”? 491
6. Conclusion – a new instrument for a new century 492

List of Contributors 495

Index 499
The European Union (EU) has conducted a number of peace operations recently. Some of them were enhancing UN peace missions while others were performed almost independently. Past experience has proved that the EU-UN cooperation in the security and peace field may bring positive outcomes, however there are some serious challenges to deal with.  